

Institutional Distinctiveness

Transparent evaluation system of the institution depicts the efficiency and efficacy of an institution. To measure the student's progress, to bring reform in education system and to enhance the accountability for the outcome, St. Soldier College of Education has adopted an effective mechanism of evaluation. For qualitative assessment, the college has an active evaluation system to review the content addressed. For reviewing, institutional feedback is collected from students, parents and stakeholders which is further analyzed and proper follow up is taken up for effective functioning of the institution. One of the proven effective practices of our institution is the execution of house examinations in every organized way. In the beginning of the session the examination in charge of the college with guidance of the Principal decides the tentative schedule for the house examination and internal assessment. The college frames the schedule for the house tests of every semester beforehand. The college maintains the record of attendance and award lists of house examination. During the staff meetings, proper discussion on results of house tests are done. Requisite remedial and enrichment material is provided to the students for improving their performance in final examination.
